By WALTER M. BARRETT

The state chamber of commerce has accomplished a worthy undertaking by extolling far and wide the advantages to be had by coming to our bountiful state of California. The publicity has been read and absorbed by saints and sinners alike. It is the latter legion that make man made laws necessary and as California attracts a great deal of riff-raff along with solid citizens we must be doubly vigilant. Our border checking stations have been effective weapons against the undesirables. The railroads and bus lines each have special police to see that order is kept on the vehicles. How much greater the task on a public highway. Do we want to give crime a free reign? It is not questioned that we should have bug control—then why not a crime control? A lawless person fears apprehension. Are we going to continue to have them respect our state laws or are we going to leave the gates wide and welcome them with open arms, but close our eyes while they debauch our citizens and take their property and leave a trail of unsolved crimes. Perhaps it would be fitting as an alternate to retaining the checking stations that we have a welcoming brass band at each point. It would not be necessary, however, as a gesture of courtesy to hand the criminals the keys to the state as they ride through the passes in stolen cars with weapons concealed within easy reach—they would undoubtedly have their professional tool kit in the back seat.

Wesley L. Davis, Jr., editor of the Placer Gold at Loomis, has the following to say regarding recent discussions in Truckee concerning incorporation: "Truckee is talking about incorporating. That should be a good idea. It is so far away from other like-sized California towns, its government problems are apt to be neglected. Its situation under twelve feet of snow in winter and fifteen feet of tourist and resort trade in summer demands local government and tax fixing ability."

It's getting time to oil up your fishing tackle and brush the moths out of the flies. Two weeks since Easter the official starters will announce the opening of Truckee's New Year with the sun rise and the annual vieing for honors as to see who can get the biggest one to get away. Remember that the more you leave the more there'll be next year and the little ones still have a long way to grow and they provide little sport in the catching, so let's leave them for a while and concentrate on the big fellows.

CHAMBER SEEKING TO HAVE DEBRIS IN ALLEY MOVED

The Truckee Chamber of Commerce Monday directed a letter to the local sanitary board, asking that steps be taken to eliminate the unsanitary and extremely unsightly condition in the alley back of Commercial Row, where the winter's collection of garbage and debris has accumulated.

The condition, the members of the chamber agreed, offers a serious health hazard as well as being a fire trap and unwholesome to see.

MARY'S SHOPPE TO BE LOCATED IN HOTEL BUILDING

Mary's Beauty Shoppe will be open and ready for business on May 2 at the new location in the Riverside Hotel building, according to Mary Riquette, well known beauty operator and proprietor of the shop. The appointments in the new place are modern and the interior has been newly decorated.

OVERCROWDED SEWER OFFERS NEW MENACE IN LOCAL CLEANUP

The garbage and trash situation in some parts of Truckee may be deplorable, but a new and greater menace has arisen in the east part of town where sewage floods the streets, sewers being incapable of handling the drainage waters and sewage at the same time.

This was the report presented at a Lions Club meeting last night by residents of the affected district.

Members of the sanitary board were appealed to in an effort to have the health menace eliminated and action immediately was promised, although shortage of funds presents a handicap, the Lions were told.

One Killed, Three Injured As Snow Crushes Tunnel 11

Robert Schull Rites Held At Yuba City Where His Family Resides

YEAR'S SECOND DEATH

Three Removed To Hospital Suffering From Crash Injuries

Funeral services were held in Yuba City Wednesday afternoon for Robert Edward Schull, 32, victim of a cave-in at Tunnel Eleven on the main line of the Southern Pacific, three miles east of Summit on Easter morning.

Three other men, all members of the railroad's bridge and building crew, working under the direction of Foreman Hughie Montgomery, were injured and taken to the hospital in San Francisco.

Schull was killed when the heavy embankment of snow which had threatened the west end of the tunnel crashed down upon the 25 men engaged in removing the weight from the straining timbers.

Warned by a shout from their foreman, most of the men in the crew leaped to safety, the avalanche trapping Schull, A. L. Ogilvie of Oakland, W. R. Dunning of Loomis and Oscar Anderson of Norden. Ogilvie has a crushed chest, Dunning suffered with shock and exposure from being buried under the snow and debris and Anderson had a badly injured arm. All of the injured were expected to survive.

The crew had been working on Tunnel Eleven since Wednesday as the snow, about 20 feet deep at the point was threatening to crush the tunnel entrance.

Emergency calls were sent out to Colfax, Reno and Truckee for aid as reports of the disaster were broadcast. Dr. J. H. Bernard of Truckee was the first on the scene and gave treatment to the injured.

As soon as the shock of the sudden disaster was abated, men rushed to the cave-in and after rescuing their comrades soon had the debris removed and traffic, which had been routed temporarily over the east-bound track, was returned to normal.

Schull, whose body was taken to his home in Yuba City for burial, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Schull and a brother, Kirk Schull and a sister, Wanda Schull all of Yuba City.

The fatality was the second on the Southern Pacific in this district during the difficult snow removal program this winter, a Mexican section hand, having been killed by a rotary plow six weeks ago near the same place.

A number of prospective home builders have made arrangements to purchase select lots in the subdivision, Joseph said, while Joseph plans to start work immediately on a 20-unit auto camp to be located just east of the Wye on the north side of the highway.

The camp will be modern in every respect, Joseph said, the courts being each two rooms with bath and garage. A filling station and office will be located near one corner of lot which will be fenced.

175,000 Rainbow Trout Promised For Local Streams

Fish Will Be Held At Tallac Hatchery Until After August 1st

COOPERATION NEEDED

Montana Rainbow Spawn Is Purchased For Local Streams

Assurance that the Truckee river will be restocked with another 175,000 rainbow trout again this coming fall, providing cooperation can be obtained from interested citizens of Truckee and the San Francisco Fly-casting club, is contained in a letter to C. B. Peterson, secretary of the club from A. C. Taft, chief of the bureau of fish conservation of the state division of fish and game.

Last fall approximately 170,000 rainbow trout were planted in the river after being raised to more than an average of five inches in the rearing ponds of the fly-casting club. The same program is contemplated for this fall, Truckee residents sharing the cost of raising the fish.

The letter to Peterson follows: We have received the request of your club for 175,000 rainbow trout fry to be allocated to your rearing ponds on the Truckee River.

In accordance with your request we have made the following plans. Due to the fact that the season will be delayed at the Tallac hatchery by the extended heavy snowfall, we will try to obtain late April or early May spawned eggs from dealers in Montana. By using these later spawned fish we will be able to provide the necessary space in the Tallac hatchery after some of the fall spawned fish, such as eastern brook, have been planted out. The rainbow for your ponds will be held at the Tallac until after August 1st, in order to help you in preventing the losses brought about through muscle glochidia which are prevalent during the month of July. Our ability to hold these fish into July will, of course, be dependent upon water conditions which are not always favorable in the Tallac hatchery in late summer.

We hope that both members of your club and the interested citizens of Truckee find the above arrangements satisfactory.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) A. C. TAFT

Chief, Bureau of Fish Conservation.

YOU AND THE TROUT

It won't be long now before legions of ardent anglers will be pitting their skill and patience against the wiles of California's finny gamesters, whipping the rippling waters of lakes and stream.

On May 1, the season will open in all but a few restricted areas. Assuming one has properly armed himself with rod and reel, and not forgot his license, it then remains strictly a matter between him and the trout.

Where to go? Well, there appears to be wide divergence of opinion. Our advice is to be at the right place at the right time. We do know that no other stream in the state offers more chance of a pleasant fishing trip without dangers of poison snakes and weeds than the Truckee River and its tributaries. Thousands of sportsmen annually make this headquarters while they enjoy the fishing offered in scores of nearby lakes and streams.

Here in Truckee will be found equipment for all types of fishermen as well as moderately priced accommodations and everything else to gladden the hearts of the sportsmen.

WARNING ISSUED

Help for the local taxpayer, as voted by legislature last month, is in danger of being lost, according to a statement issued this week by the California State Chamber of Commerce.

Although $6,000,000 was voted to help counties meet old age costs, only about $3,000,000 will be reflected in local tax bills, it was pointed out. Twenty-three thousand additional old people coming under this relief will absorb at least half of the amount granted the counties by the legislature.

Whether or not the $3,000,000 estimated saving will be an actual saving, the state chamber warned, depends entirely on whether the reductions are allowed to stand or new obligations assumed to replace them.

It was estimated that the old age aid costs for 1937-38 would amount to over $38,000,000 and for the year 1938-39, to over $49,000,000. In spite of this rise, the counties' share of these costs will be reduced from $10,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Taxpayers in every county were asked by the state chamber to support their county boards of supervisors in seeing that no new expenditures were made, to dissipate this saving.

Economic Highlights

Happenings that Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

When the slump in business first hit the country, at the beginning of last fall, most expert opinion leaned toward the view that it didn't amount to much, constituted but a momentary dip in the long-pull recovery cycle that began in 1925, and would shortly be over and forgotten. When despite these predictions, the slump not only continued but grew steadily worse, the usual forecast was that it would continue throughout 1937 but would be overcome by a marked spring business improvement.

Today, this forecast has been exploded—spring is over, and, while improvement has occurred, and been better than seasonal in some lines, the grip of the "recession" is still strong. Sufficient time has passed for authorities to adequately review the causes of the decline, and the influences that have maintained it. There is more realistic, factual thinking going on now—as against the "wishful thinking" that characterized the statements of even the best experts some months ago. It is probable that the current forecasts of the country's outstanding economists are more important, and have behind them a better basis for sound prophecy, than those of the past. What are the experts thinking?

Newsweek recently questioned 40 of these experts—and 24 of them gave complete replies—as to the business outlook for the future. The 24 men answering constitute an unusually representative cross-section of opinion—they include conservative authorities, such as Leonard Ayers and O. M. W. Sprague; government experts such as Willis Ballinger of the Federal Trades Commission and Mordcai Ezekiel of the Department of Agriculture; economist close to operating industry, such as Willard Thorp of Dun and Bradstreet, and Rufus Tucker of General Motors, and more of less "left-wingers", such as Rexford Tugwell and Leon Henderson.

Three of the 24 forecast that there will be a further slump in business. Three forecast no change. Eighteen forecast slight improvement. None forecast marked improvement.

To make the forecasts as exact as possible, Newsweek asked the economists to state where, in their opinion, the seasonally adjusted industrial index of the Federal Reserve Board would stand in May. This index reached 118 in 1929, averaged 110 in 1937, and in February hit a three-year low of 79. The lowest prediction of its May point was 75; the highest 88, and the average of all predictions was 81.1. For June, the average predictions placed the index at 81.8, with the lowest forecast 74, and the highest 91. Sixteen of the experts say June will be a better month than May; five forecast a drop; three anticipate no change.

To sum up, if these authorities are right, there is no reason for either optimism or pessimism today. Business will improve before the end of summer—but to a very slight extent. The "recession" will continue to hang on—but it will not grow stronger. In brief, the economists think that we are facing a waiting period now, during which conditions will be just about as they are at present, with the trend upward.

Newsweek adds that nearly all of the 24 answering specified that their forecasts were based on assumptions: first, that there will be no major startling foreign developments in the next three months; second, that there will be an important change in the policy of the administration toward business. Unlooked for occurrences in either of these matters could, of course, smash even the best forecasts to smithereens.

The last issue of this column discussed the pros and cons of the Administration government reorganization bill, and offered the opinion that the measure would pass, plus one or two important amendments, such as authorizing Congress to override an act of the President under the bill by a majority vote, instead of the two-thirds vote originally specified.

This column was wrong—though, in self-defense, it can be said it had lots of company. The reorganization bill apparently is dead—due to the astonishing action of the House on April 8, when, by a vote of 204 to 198, it sent the measure back to a special committee. Before the vote, according to an AP dispatch, Democratic leaders had admitted that this action would kill the bill. Every weapon on at the command of those leaders in the house was used in an attempt to save the bill.

This Administration defeat is second only to the Supreme Court reorganization bill defeat in importance. It means that the White House has definitely lost control of Congress, and that a great many members who could once be trusted to take "the party line" when New Deal measures came up, are in open revolt against the Roosevelt leadership.

The opinion is now growing that the President will take the fight into the 1938 political campaigns, and attempt to defeat in the primaries, Democrats who have refused to follow the White House legislative policy.

DEMOCRACY AND A Free Press ARE INSEPARABLE

FREE GOVERNMENT cannot perish while a free press survives; on the other hand its days are numbered when freedom of the press disappears. When the Constitution of the United States was in process of adoption after the American Revolution, the people demanded that it guarantee freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and freedom of worship. First hand experience with despotism in Europe had taught them that liberty is an illusion unless people have the right to voice and print their own opinion, the right to nominate and elect candidates in opposition to the government, the right to pursue their own plans within the limits of the law. They knew that democracy and freedom of the press go hand in hand, one and inseparable. Freedom of the American press today is the first line of defense established for the security of free government in America. The welfare and independence of your newspaper is the welfare and independence of your nation.

PLANS MADE FOR OPENING STORE BY NEW MANAGER

TAHOE CITY, April 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Weller Atherton returned to Tahoe on Saturday from a week's motor vacation trip. Operating plans of the Athertons, new owners of the Tahoe Mercantile's Cash and Carry store on the main highway in Tahoe City is expected to add new life to the town's main artery this summer.

Mr. Atherton announced he will convert the present Atherton's Store upon which his lease does not expire for some time, into a Cash and Carry store, A. M. "Red" Anderson, popular and efficient clerk for many years at the Tahoe Mercantile, to be in charge there. The Athertons will also occupy the apartment over the store.

The newly purchased building will undergo minor alterations, including a modern soda fountain. Lous Gerkin will be retained as clerk in the new enterprise. The larger building, to be converted into a service store, will carry a wide variety of all commodities. They will be ready to open for regular business about May 1.

Work Is Strated On New Community Hall In Tahoe's Civic Center

TAHOE CITY, April 21.—On Friday Joe White and his partner, Dick Cleveland of Kailua Park, went to work on the site of Tahoe's new community center building with their bulldozer. An interested crowd gathered from time to time to watch the removal of dirt and rocks in preparation for laying the concrete foundation.

Plans for the the erection of the new building had to be changed by N. R. Mayfield, in charge, when a long ledge of rock formation was encountered in the side of the bank where excavation had been planned for the lower floor. Removal would have been costly and delayed work for a possible four or five days, so it was decided to make the center a full two-story building instead of the story and a half as originally planned. On Monday a crew of workmen began laying forms for the foundation and work will be rush.

YOUTH LOSES ALL FAITH IN EASTER AS RABBIT EATEN

TAHOE CITY, April 21.—Little Jimmie Swanson spent a very doleful Easter this year as tears of real sadness washed away completely his faith in human kindness.

Eugene Re stopped in a few days before the holiday and presented Jimmie with a beautiful, snow white bunny with a wiggly nose and big, soulful eyes. He was a tame and friendly little fellow and only a few moments acquaintanship made of them friends for life. But harboring a bunny in crowded winter quarters is no indoor picnic, and putting him in an icy basement meant death by pneumonia.

Jim's father objected to making a rabbit hutch of the bathtub where the little unwelcome visitor was bedded down in a box for a day and night. So the inevitable answer to the puzzling dilemma proved to be the one which eventually near broke Jim's heart. For little "Snow White" instead of laying a tub-full of beautiful variegated Easter eggs on Easter morning as might be expected, served as a glorified savoury entree for the Sunday dinner instead—leaving one small boy brokenhearted and sadly disillusionized.

DUANNE BLISS DIES FROM PNEUMONIA IN SAN FRANCISCO

TAHOE CITY, April 21.—Duane Bliss, Jr., of San Francisco, 63 year old brother of Walter D. W. S. C. T. and Miss Hope Bliss, members of a pioneer Tahoe family, passed away on Monday of pneumonia in San Francisco.

His death was completely unexpected he having been ill only 36 hours previously. He was manager at the Tahoe Tavern for many years, leaving Tahoe about 1915 to assume other business responsibilities. He as one of the early pioneers of this region and loved Tahoe in its first heyday of blissful popularity. Many acres of choicest property still are retained here by members of the Bliss family. A widow survives.

TAHOE DISTRICT PERSONALS

The Tahoe region was treated to a rare phenomena of scintillating Northern Lights over the Nevada mountains both on Wednesday and Friday night. While rather enigmatic in color on their first appearance, the heavens were brilliant with flaming red and yellow on Friday, bathing the silent lake waters in pale pink for many hours.

Plows on Saturday again shaved generous slices from Tahoe's snowbanks in the Sunnyside district, making an excellent road for this time of year. Snow depths here, while dropping rapidly with the welcomed warm spring sun, still range from five to eight feet. Many bare spots, however, are in evidence near Tahoe City and in the Brockway region, the grass and vegetation appearing at intervals. The temperature went as high as 74 on Monday.

 Residents of the Sunnyside district during the past week have foregone the pleasure of strolling in the light of the full moon as reports of the sighting of a mountain lion in the region have been circulated. A highway employee told of encountering the big cat late one night as it sprang from the roadside to the top of the high snowbank with effortless ease near Sunnyside beach. The battery of his flashlight failed as he sought to shoot it. Another night the animal was reported near the James Ferguson home, sneaking along the road.
 Miss Lillian Vernon, home with her sister, Florence, from the Sacramento Junior College for Easter vacation with their family, received painful injuries to her eye when hit with a

Meeks Bay

The H. and W. Philanthropic club resumed its meetings on Monday, April 11 as the members, who have been snowed in since last January, assembled. Mrs. Pearl Heller, secretary, called a meeting in the absence of Mrs. Cora Walker, president. Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Heller were the hosts.

The visitors were called west to attend the funeral of Mr. Walker's mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Walker motored them as far south as Pomona on their way back to Missouri after visiting relatives in Petaluma, Santa Cruz, Atwater, Fresno, Hardwick and Pomona. Some of the family had not met for 34 years.

TAHOE SUMMER HOME LOOTED BY THIEF; LIQUOR STOLEN

Placer county and Tahoe City peace officers are conducting an investigation into the asserted looting of the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nobs of Grass Valley, which is located near Sandy Beach on the shores of Lake Tahoe.

Nobs was informed of the robbery when he reached a San Francisco hotel. He said he would go to Tahoe to aid the authorities in their search.

The Nobs home was entered by the culprit breaking the glass in the French door, according to F. Barton who noticed the door open as he passed the place. The intruders had looted the supply of liquor and a number of empty bottles were found scattered about. Rooms were littered with cigarette butts, empty food cans and dry bread. A fire had been built in the fireplace and bedding and pillows were found scattered as though the thief had spent some time there.
 Charles Swanson, deputy sheriff was called to investigate and obtained fingerprints.

The purpose of the realistic melodrama will illustrate how far organized society has progressed in conserving the lives of those whose daily tasks take them to the bowels of the earth.

FISHING PROSPECTS

Although high waters from the rapid runoff of the snow caused by recent warm weather have put some doubt in the minds of fishermen, the opening of the season here is expected to be good for bait anglers, local experts declare.

At the present time the Truckee is a bit muddy, especially below the mouth of the Little Truckee and the streams in the district are rising as the heavy snow melts under the warm sun and gentle spring winds.

Bait fishermen, however are collecting apparatus and making ready to lure the elusive trout.

GUARDIAN OF MILLIONS IN GOLD

THIS battered looking fortification once guarded a city to which gold and silver were brought in such amazing quantities that the bars were piled up like wood in the central plaza. It stands at the entrance to Porto Bello, a little town twenty miles from Colon and a favorite objective of travelers stopping off in the Canal Zone on the cruises to California and to South America.

Porto Bello was once one of the most famous cities in the New World yet strangely it came to life only once or twice a year when the Spanish merchant fleet and its convoy arrived over here to bring supplies to the colonists and pick up the Royal Fifth of the treasure collected by the conquistadores. While the galleons were in port a great fair was held in Porto Bello and traders by the thousands arrived to open up shop. Accommodations were so scarce that hundreds lived in tents and many were forced to pay as much as $500 in gold per month as rental for a small shop. In the meantime gold and silver from mines such as the fantastically productive one at Potosi, Bolivia, were started on their way by ship up the West Coast from Arica and intermediate ports, to Panama and thence transferred by muleteam caravans across the Isthmus to Porto Bello for shipment. For many days droves of mules poured into the city, often as many as 200 in a day, laden to the limit with gold and silver ingots—some years the total amount taken back to Spain by the fleet was as much as three million dollars.

SAD iron days became glad iron days when the sleek and shiny electric iron came into women's hands. Perhaps in your home it was the first electric servant you put to use. Right then your electric bill became more than a light bill.

Now for just a few pennies a day, about the price of a package of cigarettes, or a magazine or a piece of pie, electricity gives your home many services besides lighting. It "perks" coffee, makes ice, beats batter, crisps toast, curls hair, sweeps rugs, runs electric clocks and radios... well, you can probably add more to this list.

Really, now, isn't electricity making life a lot easier in your home since the day you first used an electric iron? What else gives you such full value for your money?
